Scrubs.
Western Resources.]

What an odious term. "Scrubs" and "scabs" are about as hard terms as can be applied to the brute or human creation. One characteristic they possess which no other words have to a greater extent, i. e., significance. We do hope the time will soon come when foolish men will cease to bring scrub stock to Nebraska for sale at public auction. Speculators should keep posted by reading the stock and farm papers, or by any other means that is effective. They ought to discover that the great "New West" is a progressive country, and no longer a port for landing scrub stock. Not long since a man brought a bunch of grade and cross-bred stallions from Illinois to Lincoln, and advertised them for sale at public auction, expecting, of course, a profit on his business. They were offered in the sale barn, and a number of good horsemen were present. They had been advertised as "thoroughbreds," and buyers came, no doubt, expecting full-blood horses, but when the salesman told their breeding and said, "This one has a bunch on his ankle and a little off in his wind," what could have been expected except no bids. They were taken back and put in their stalls, but finally brought back in the ring, and some sold for the price of work animals. We firmly believe an ordinary auctioneer could have sold these horses for more money on a Government square to a crowd of pure farmers than the fine stock salesman did to a body of horsemen. These horses turned loose in Nebraska do not improve our stock; they are an absolute damage; and the man who brought them here for sale lost money. It will have one healthy effect, we hope, and that is, to deter other men from bringing in ill-bred, unsound stock for breeding purposes to this country for sale.

No, no, Mr. Speculator, we do not want your scrubs, but will pay good money for combined breeding and individual merit.

"Stranger than Fiction." Miles City (Mont.) Yellowstone Journal.] Ed. Brown, the smooth-tongued cow man, is telling a capital story concerning wintering of stock in that locality. A stock man named Brewster had a bunch of sixty-five cattle, which along in February he drove across the river to a better pasture, but the cattle stayed there but a very little time, returning to their own range. When they came back Mr. Brewster counted them and found one missing, nor did he run across it dead or alive for six weeks. This is getting to be a long story, but it took Ed. a long time to tell it. At the end of six weeks he found the missing animal in an old root house which he had not used during the winter. The animal had walked into the open entrance to the cellar when returning with the others from across the river and had been shut in. It was not dead when Brewster discovered it, although he positively declares there was nothing in that cellar but a bushel of frozen potatoes. These the animal subsisted on for that six weeks of extremely cold weather and must have slaked its thirst by the same means. Well, the critter was gently driven out of the cellar and led to the river, where it plunged in and seemed about to ruin itself by taking too much water. Brewster desired to save that hardy critter's life, so in the river he plunged to cut it off from drinking but the steer quietly swam over to the other side and went to browsing as though a frozen potato diet for six weeks had in no way impaired its appetite for bunch grass.

Brown and Brewster are now preparing to organize a stock wintering trust and will dig cellars all along the Hanging Woman and play poker with the grangers for frozen potatoes.

Never Give Up.

If you are troubled with catarrh, and have tried other medicines, you will be unable to express your amazement at the marvellous and instantaneous recovery powers of California Catarrh. SATURDAY, MAY 19, 1888

EUROPEAN students are amazed that the severe strain to which our governmental system is subjected comes from the Presidential elections. Every four years, they say the country undergoes a peaceful political revolution. It is a time of intense national excitement; business is neglected or absolutely suspended; party feeling runs high; political differences frequently end in murder; the whole fabric of state is going to the demolition bow-wow. All these things they see plainly and upon them base the assertion that the strain is more than any Government can bear. They forget, however, that the people of the United States are active, effervescent, and full of nervous, virile force; that they have fewer bollards than the people of any other nation; that they have no wars, no Irish question, no Home rule, no foreign complications, upon which to expend their superabundant energy. And thus they fail to appreciate the undoubted fact that the so-called strain of Presidential years is in fact a safeguard, a tap which draws off superfluous energy into a harmless channel and thus prevents its sudden eruption in any dangerous direction. The Presidential election is to the great mass of the American nation what the Sunday fight is to the Cornish miner. It is recreation. The story is told of one of the delvers in the earth who offered battle against overwhelming odds. He was jumped upon, kicked in the stomach, beaten into insensibility, doubled up like a jack-knife and left for dead. Six hours afterward he recovered consciousness with the soliloquy, "Ay, mon, it was a nice bit of fight. Ye've had your fun, now for work again." Just so with the American people. And after each election, whether victorious or defeated, the people return to their occupations with renewed zest and with the feeling that they have had a luxurious rest.

CONGRESSMAN RUSSELL of Massachusetts delivered himself of a tirade in favor of the Mills bill yesterday, and in proclaiming for free wool declared that he was a wool-grower himself. Now, however, it transpires, says the Sacramento Bee, that Russell's wool-growing experience consists in the ownership of fifteen blooded muttons which he keeps on a fancy farm in the country, while he lives in the city. Like many another theoretical farmer, Russell differs from the sturdy men who have wood and won the fair Ceres in the field and at the plow's handle. Free tariff would not inconvenience the Massachusetts statesman nor his fifteen Southdowns, but the man to whom wool-growing means a livelihood is quite different.

In the light of events the report that Colonel J. P. Irish was urged by the President to convert Oregon to his free trade doctrines does not seem to have been a mistake. Colonel Irish is now rolling the mellow thunder of his base voice over the length and breadth of the Webfoot territory, and the hushed air is shivering in expectancy. But all the same the undertaking is a hopeless one. The preliminary taste of the operation of free trade which the coast has experienced in the California failure is a more potent argument than all the honeyed words of the rhetoricians.

GENERAL BADEAU, not content with plastering himself with mud, is busily engaged in rubbing it in. The Grant family has offered to pay his claim in full and to bear all costs, upon the express understanding that the money is given to avoid further unpleasant notoriety. Badeau insists upon a vindication of his honor by a public trial, and his lawyers have thrown up his case. This creature of the dead General is either a Frankenstein or else he has come to believe that he and not Grant is the nation's idol.

The Nevada Bank.

The predictions of the San Francisco Post, published some weeks ago, in relation to the ultimate settlement of affairs in the Nevada Bank have been realized. At a meeting of the Directors held Thursday, Mr. J. C. Flood and H. H. Foote resigned their positions as Directors, and retired from the management. The vacancies in the Board were subsequently filled by the election of James L. Flood and A. E. Davis, a former associate of Senator Fair in the South Pacific Coast Railroad. Mr. Fair will continue as President, and no other changes in the management or business policy of the bank are contemplated. Mr. James C. Flood intends to depart for Europe within a few days, for the benefit of his health.

JEERS AND HISSES.

How the Republicans Greeted Mills for Making an Objection.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The House was thrown into an uproar at the conclusion of Randall's hour. A request was made that Randall be allowed to proceed, but an objection was made by Mills—an objection which was greeted with jeers and hisses by the Republicans.

A VIGOROUS CRITICISM.

In the course of his speech McKinley said that the criticism of the bill and creation of an amendment and applause by his analysis of the inconveniences of the measure. While he said that owing to a lack of time he could not point out all the ridiculous features of the bill, he picked out a few samples by which, he said, the bill could be judged.

He showed that the duty on steel bolts had been raised from 45 cents to 50 cents, and that the increase was due to the fact that the cost of wire fencing that encloses the farms of the west. The duty on cut nails made from steel bolts was reduced 25 cents, while the duty on raw material was increased 45 per cent.

He criticized the bill which the President had sent to be passed by the Senate, and which he did not receive official favors to have passed. He declared that the bill was sectional, in that the cotton planter could get hoop iron from his cotton bales free of duty, while the farmer of the West must pay for the same iron 1½ cents per pound if he wished to buy it.

THE BEST OF THE DEBATE.

McKinley completed at 2:40 P. M. what was considered by many the best protectionist speech of the debate, and was enthusiastically applauded and congratulated by his party and colleagues. He was followed by Breckinridge, who was warmly received.

THE GREAT FLOOD.

Terrible Suffering Caused by the Overflowing Mississippi.

QUINCY, Ill., May 19.—The flood prevailing along the Mississippi river has never been equaled, except in 1851. Ten days ago the water reached the danger point, and since then has been steadily rising at the rate of from four to fourteen inches daily, and the water is to come. Thousands of acres are covered with water and hundreds of families have been compelled to leave their homes at imminent notice. The loss to the farming interest is simply incalculable, as the district flooded is the richest in the valley. On the embankment of the river hundreds of cattle, horses and hogs are gathered without food, while across on the opposite bank are hundreds of men, women and children, destitute, and nearly suffocating for food. Coal, timber and machinery with this site is entirely cut off. Every road has been covered with water. Factories and warehouses along the river are seriously embarrassed and large buildings are gradually undermined by the rushing waters.

Mob Law in Arkansas.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 18.—A party of armed and masked men surrounded the house of W. A. Lee Wednesday night, in Dallas county and demanded a sum of money, which was refused. The door was then broken down and about half of the party rushed into the room and bound Lee. John and Miler Riggs, relatives who were sleeping in the house, escaped through a back door and were attacked by the outside guard. Seven who were in the house, when Walker, one of the mob, fell dead. The robbers, though badly wounded, succeeded in reaching the adjacent woods. The man inside, learning of the death of Walker, began firing at Lee, riddling him with bullets. No arrests have been made. The Sheriff of Dallas County has gone to the scene. Lee had been warned to leave the country ten days ago.

State Land Office.

During the week ending May 18 twenty-three applications for State land were filed, embracing 4,510.20 acres. Cash receipts were:

Pymatuning applications, $1,357.86;

payments on contracts, $48.88; interest payments on contracts, $200.29; total, $1,607.03.

The Times says the only point of interest in the Parnell manifesto is that Parnell declares the party is an entire stranger to the plan of campaign, and that the members of the party mean and justify it.

WOODBURN'S "WINNER".

The Nevada Congressman Meant Just What He Said.

When Woodburn telegraphed from Washington to "nominate a winner" it was evident that he meant just what he said, says the Carson Appeal. H. F. Bartine of Ormsby was the winner nominated at Winnemucca on Tuesday last. Mr. Bartine did not go to Winnemucca as an aspirant for Congressional honors, but as a candidate for the Supreme Judgeship, it being supposed that Woodburn's friends would ask that he be tendered the Congressional nomination.

At Winnemucca there was a desire on the part of everyone that he be nominated for Congress, some even holding that he was stronger than Woodburn. He declined to accept these overtures until he had won his Jujigishi fight. He needed but a few votes to win when Judge Leonard was withdrawn from the fight and a sufficient number of voters tendered to Bartine to make his nomination certain. When this was accomplished he called his delegation together and thanked them for their fidelity to his interests, said: "I have been charged with putting myself before my party. I wish to purge myself from that charge. I will accept the Congressional nomination and meet any man the Democrats choose to nominate in the Fall campaign. I did not feel in justice to my delegates that I could withdraw from the fight until now, nor can I rest under the imputations that I feared the result of a Congressional campaign against George Cassidy."

The leading men of the Republican party were at his headquarters along with his delegation at the time and all heartily congratulated him on his bold, manly course. All present saw in absolute necessity of placing a "winner" on the Congressional ticket at a time when the industries of the country need the protection of the Lower House of Congress. The Judgeship fight meant an easy victory, coupled with high honors and large pecuniary emoluments for a term of six years. The Congressional fight was a hard campaign, two years of office and small financial returns. Yet when called upon to serve his State and his party he tramped self under foot and placed his energies and abilities at the disposal of his party and his State. His sacrifice in the interest of his party, instantly made him recognized as a standard bearer, worthy to be trusted, and he was on all sides showered with congratulations. His splendid speech before the convention intensified the good impression he had made and there was but one opinion expressed: "This is the winner."

The editor of the Appeal goes into details in this matter for the purpose of vindicating the Ormsby delegation from the charges circulated on the streets that it was put up in the interest of Leonard to throw Bartine overboard when certain men gave the signal. The man who so ingeniously circulated these imputations of treachery at the expense of the delegation, manufactured them, but a goddam believed them.

Elle Ellen's Condition.

Elle Ellen, the former lumber king of Truckee, is said to be rapidly failing, as softening of the brain has set in. He is now childless and evidently has no recollection of the recent events which have proven such a bitter trial to him, but continually thinks of his old home in Germany and of his struggle in the gold mines of California in early days. While his mind is deplorable, he suffers no pain, and is in a wise dispensation of Providence that his last days on earth are not embittered by reflections of his unhappy life during the past few years.

Gentlemen:—Mr. Lewis Dennis has just called on me, and informs me that the boy Eric Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, of Lowell, was cured by St. Jacob's Oil in 1881; the cure has been repeated by St. Jacob's Oil in 1882; the young man has been and is now at work at manual labor; the case certainly proves the efficacy of St. Jacob's Oil.

The Future Prospect of the Eastern Portion.

The people of Eastern Nevada have every reason to congratulate themselves on the future prospects of this portion of the sagebrush state. Although the past winter, or a short period at least, was unusually severe, the losses of stock were comparatively light, and many stockmen who were discouraged at the prospect which was presented during the severe cold weather of January were agreeably surprised on the opening of spring to find that their losses were no greater than are generally sustained during an average winter. The month of April was unusually warm and dry, and the prospect for feed on the range was not inviting,

but within the past week or two,

says the Elko Independent, copious showers have visited us and the grass is better now than it has been

MINING MATTERS.

News from the Mining Districts of Eastern Nevada.

REGULAR CORRESPONDENCE.

ELKO, May 17, 1888.

EDITOR GAZETTE.—Mining prospecting always goes by fits and starts. Whenever a development of some importance is made in any heretofore abandoned district forthwith an excitement is started and everybody is on the prospect with the time-honored outfit of cooking and mining tools. Each prospector has knowledge of some particular rich spot or ledge that in years gone by he neglected to develop, and he is now off to his imaginary El Dorado, and to him it is only a question of a few weeks or months until he will be a bonanza chief. The old as well as the amateur prospectors are now in such a mood. I learn that several parties are being organized for the purpose of examining and developing some abandoned districts, or partially so, in Eastern Nevada. The old prospector is a peculiar institution, an easy kind of going fellow, and has little thought for the future, dreams of rich mines and sees green fields in the distance. Nevertheless he has been and is still an important factor in discovering and bringing to notice the great mineral resources of the Pacific Coast, and a kind of forerunner in the advance guard of civilization, as it courses its way westward over the western half of this continent.

Southeastern Nevada contains a large number of mining districts that are now being reorganized with a view of further development. The most of these mines would not pay to work some eighteen or twenty years ago, but it is believed that these prospects can now be operated with profit, from the fact that twenty years' experience has taught us cheaper and better methods of mining, and that new modes and appliances have been discovered in the working of the mine in the operation and treatment of the ore. These advantages together with easier and better transportation facilities for all kinds of mining appliances will cause the resurrection of many old mining camps in Eastern Nevada and give an impetus to an increased flow of population from the region that is now lying almost dormant, excepting as a pasture field for the large and many bands of cattle and droves of sheep now roaming over the same.

The recent able efforts of Senator Stewart on behalf of the silver interest of this State has done much towards reviving this leading and paramount interest of Nevada. The thanks of the people of this state are unquestionably due him for the heroic battles he has fought during the present session of Congress to maintain silver in its rightful position as a part of our circulating medium and purchasing power of the people almost slumbered.

Among other old mining districts that have again come into prominence is Ruby Mountain mining district, commonly known as Bad mountain, which is situated at the south end of Ruby valley and a little south of the southern line of Elko county. It was first discovered and organized in 1869, but no available or well-directed work was had until 1881. There have been located and recorded some sixty ledges or locations. The most important ledge is known as the Lizzie mine, which is owned and worked by the following-named gentlemen: Isaac Griswold, Alfred Griswold, Chauncey Griswold, W. S. Griswold and John Welekind.

Further bearing of the case was then continued until 10 o'clock on Monday morning.

A very voluminous sealed document has been handed to Clerk Williams of Judge Hunt's Court, to be used in the McDonald divorce case. It is the deposition of George L. Maddox, taken before Notary Public and Clark some time ago.

Work for the Lumbermen.

All the mills in the Sierra in the vicinity of Truckee have received from the railroad orders for unlimited quantities of ties. The slow time and the numerous accidents during the past year are said to be caused by the condition of the roadbed, which is attributed to the vast numbers of useless and rotten ties, many of which have been in use since the rails were first laid.

Ruttingen's tour of inspection has evidently borne fruit, as it is asserted that he gave orders for the reconstruction of miles of snowsheds and a general overhauling of the roadbed of the road. As a consequence the mills in the mountains have received orders for unlimited quantities of lumber and ties, as above stated, and over 500 men are now steadily employed, and will be throughout the season.

CHURCH SERVICES.

BAPTIST CHURCH—Services at the Baptist Church to-morrow morning and evening. Rev. C. L. Fisher, Pastor. Subject for 11 a. m., "The Christian Life." Sabbath School at 12:30 p. m. Subject for 7:30 p. m., "The Christian Witness." Prayer meeting at 7:30 p. m. At the Lord inclines the people to hear the word. Come one, come all.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH—Services to-morrow at 11 a. m. and 3 p. m., conducted by the pastor, Rev. T. Magill. Sunday School at 12 m. Subject for 11 a. m., "The Fruit of Redemption;" for 3 p. m., "The Necessity for Reconciliation with God." All are cordially invited.

ANOTHER CHANCE.

Dr. Prentiss has been doing some excellent work on cross-eyes, catarrh, deafness, granulated eye-lids, etc., and has consented to remain in Reno a few days more.

PARASOL! PARASOL!

A very large selection of fine parasols and sun umbrellas, including many novelties, has just been received at the Palace Dry Goods and Carpet House and are being offered at very reasonable prices.

They are also showing an elegant assortment of sateens and white dress materials.

T. S. Felton, an old pioneer of the district, is also the owner of several valuable locations upon which shafts have been sunk, exposing to view some fine ledges of gold-bearing quartz.

James Cole, another pioneer of the district, is proprietor of several fine-looking properties that promises well, the most important being the Kinnison and Palmetto. The ledges are well defined. The Chollar is situated upon the summit of the mountain. This mine is a copper location of the malachite species, averaging about 30 per cent copper and carrying from $8 to $10 per ton in gold.

I noticed in several of the ravines placed excavations had been made, and I was informed that considerable placer gold had been taken out in the winters of 1880 and 1870, which led to the discovery of the gold ledges in the district. The metallic formation is somewhat peculiar and different from all others that I examined, being so stratified and alternated by several mineral formations, such as porphyry, limestone, granite and quartzite, with slate running in zones or belts alternately north and south. This district is situated sixty miles northeast from Eureka and about the same distance in a southerly direction from Elko with an abundance of timber for fuel and building purposes. I am assured by old pioneers that there is sufficient water the year round to supply two or three 10-stamp mills.

AMERICAN.

BANDMANN COMING.

The noted tragedian to appear in a dual character.

The noted tragedian, Daniel E. Bandmann, is billed to appear at the Nevada Theater next Monday evening, May 21, in an entirely new dramatization of Stevenson's thrilling romance, "A Strange Case," in which he assumes the dual role of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

The distinguished actor will be supported by the same powerful combination of historic talent, which gave the drama a successful run of six months at Niblo's theater in New York. During that engagement an Evening Sun critic wrote as follows of the manner in which the play was produced:

"Mr. Bandmann has seldom, if ever, worked with greater force and evident sincerity. His picture of Hyde is completely satisfying, as the perfect embodiment of Stevenson's weird fancy. It thrilled, it awed all the time it was on view. As Dr. Jekyll he approached much nearer than Mansfield to the suffering physician, for his pathos was sincere, his moral course reasonable, and his final struggle intensely interesting."

The box sheet for Bandmann's one-night engagement is now open at Davis' cigar store, and the brisk demand fore-shadows a big "take."

THE McDONALD CASE.

TESTIMONY FOR THE PROSECUTION.

Nearly All In.

Plaintiff in the McDonald divorce case was again called to the witness-stand in Judge Hunt's court Thursday afternoon, says the San Francisco Post.

The witness was questioned at length with reference to the care of his child.

Nothing more was elicited than an expression of preferences between relatives.

Counsel for plaintiff then stated that this concluded the testimony for their side, except that of one witness, Agnes Kelly, who was keeping out of the way. If she could not be obtained by Monday next plaintiff would rest his case.

Further hearing of the case was then continued until 10 o'clock on Monday morning.

A very voluminous sealed document has been handed to Clerk Williams of Judge Hunt's Court, to be used in the McDonald divorce case. It is the deposition of George L. Maddox, taken before Notary Public and Clark some time ago.

WORK FOR THE LUMBERMEN.

RUTTINGEN'S TOUR.

The ticket is clean throughout. Not a vestige of the railway corporation whose methods are more crooked than its track attaches to any one place thereof. Nolloby is at his best in his treatment of the Democratic party.—Virginia Chronicle.

POSTPONEMENT.

Dr. Prentiss has again prolonged his stay in Reno for a few days more. Those wishing to see him should do so at once.
